INTRO

There are so many brilliant people and things happening in our city – therefore there is absolutely no reason why anyone shouldn't have the opportunity to find and develop their skills, dreams and networks.

If you wanted to talk to someone with experience about the first steps in starting a social enterprise, find interesting and useful details of classes and events, discover your perfect volunteering opportunity, find a fantastic mentoring match or read and hear inspiring stories from people just like you – where would you go?

Finding out about good stuff can be difficult. That's where we come in..

As a mental health social enterprise we know that at least 140,937 people in our Sheffield community will be living with some form of mental health condition. That's a quarter of us. So, even if you personally haven't experienced ill mental health - many of the people you know, and come into contact with every day, definitely will have - however they may not have felt able to tell you. Being connected to a community of kind and interesting people is something we can all benefit from.

We know that being healthy, happy and content is important and so we're inviting people to help us create a beautiful, vibrant and appealing online space full of opportunities and information for Sheffield people by Sheffield people.

We're creating a digital platform like no other (this is a true fact).
